Thus Mr. Cleveland was between Messrs.

While Mr. Hewitt conversed with Mr.

The two candidates looded quickly at each other, both advanced at about the same instant, Mr. Grant sliding away from his perch on the railing and Mr. Hewitt raising himself up slightly from his chair.

Then in another instant their hands were clasped in front of the President, who remained seated, and they were both trying years head to smile.

Mr. Grant only made a courteous bow.

Mr. Grant only made a courteous bow, but Mayor Hewitt said:
"We will shake hands across the President, but not across the bloody chasm."
Mr. Cleveland smiled, and both men resumed their former positions.
Those who had witnessed this interesting little scene turned around to look at one another and catch their breath.

Grant and Hewitt "Shake" Across Minister Phelps Confers with Pre-Mr. Cleveland. mier Salisbury.

An Incident Not on the Parade Belief that the British Minister Programme. Will Be Recalled.

Across the President, but Not the Intense Excitement Among the Politiclans in London,

> Irish Citizens Interviewed by "The Evening World."

INTEGAL CABLE TO THE EVENING WORLD.I LONDON, Oct. 27.—Minister Phelps has gon Abram S. Hewitt and Hugh J. Grant, his opponent in the campaign, across the breast of President Cleveland.

Mayor Hewitt was late in arriving at the stand, having been detained at the City Hall by an "unusual amount of business."

Mr. Grant climbed up the steps to the stand at an early hour and got a front seat on the railing at the northern end of the box partitioned off for the President and the rest of the prominent Democrats. to Lord Salisbury's residence in Hertfordshire to confer with the Premier on the Lord Sackville-West letter.

In political circles the incident has created intense excitement. It is believed that Lord Salisbury will recall Lord Sackville. Mr. Phelps is undoubtedly acting under in structions from Washington.

Irishmen Whose Vote Will Be Changed by the Letter Fail to Materialize.

Democrats.

He wore a new blue overcoat and silk hat, and he looked altogether happy and serene.

The President ascended to the stand at 2.15, and after exchanging a few words with Bourke Cockran lie advanced to the front railing, near Mr. Grant.

The latter talked earnestly to him for a minute, and then the President seated nimes!f in a conspicuous place very near to Mr. Grant. A detail of Evening World reporters this morning interviewed a large number of seated nimself in a conspicuous place very near to Mr. Grant.

Just at this point a voice cried: "Three cheers for our Mayor!" and Mayor Hewitt was seen elbowing his way through the crowd that pressed close to the President's box.

Mr. Grant looked around just in time to see Mr. Hewitt climb over into the pen and approach Mr. Clevetand.

After greeting the President Mr. Hewitt smiled on the men near him, nodded at Mr. Grant and then took a seat on Mr. Cleve-land's left. Irishmen to ascertain what effect, if any, the 'Murchison" letter, written by Lord Sackville-West, will have upon their votes in the present election.

Some of the opinions are appended:

John O'Brien, printer, 32 Oak street—I regard the letter as a campaign scheme on the part of the Republicana, and all sensible people know that the sayings of the British Minister cannot shape an American administration. Minister West ought to go home to England, where he belongs. Nobody will take any stock in it, you can bet on that.

Peter P. White, clerk, Cathotic World—I have read Minister West's letter, and I can state positively that its contents can have no influence whatever upon enybody. I reside in Guttenburg, N. J., and know that none of my friends will take any stock in it. It is simply a Republican dodge, and everybody must regard it as such.

Miles O'Brien, a salesman for H. B. Clanin & Co.
—The Sackville-West letter will not influence me one particle, because I believe it is a triok and a device. Whether Mr. West is a victim of the scheme or the willing agent I can't tell.

John O'Leary, liquors, Beekman st., near Nassau —Will stick to Harrison.

J. Boott, teeman, 505 W. Bith st.—Will vote for Cleveland.

Tim Pynn, saloon, 117 Nassau st.—Will vote for Some of the opinions are appended:

cleveland, Mr. Grant sinhed at the reporters.

Presently Mr. Cleveland was seen to glance at Mr. Grant, then at Mr. Hewitt, his eyes twinkling with fun.

With a graceful little wave of his hand and a motion towards Mr. Grant he suggested that he and Mr. Hewitt should shake hands.

The effect was indeed startling. Every one in the stand had seen the movement and each one watched the outcome of it with great interest.

Cleveland.

Tim Flynn, saloon, 117 Nassan st.—Will vote for Cleveland, letter or no letter.

T. M. lynch, liquors, 99 Nassau street—Sure to vote for Cleveland. Thinks the letter will have no Thomas O'Connor, 70 Nassau street—For Cleveland.

Wm. Ryan, real estate, 70 Liberty street—Thinks it a put up job and will surely vote for Cieveland.

James Harrison, rinter, 17 Centre street,—The whole thing was originated by one of the Republican leaders, and no sensible Irishman will pay any attention to it. It is absurd to think that it will gain votes for Harrison.

Jeremiah Donovan, printer, 247 Clinton street—The Republicans are trying to get hold of something now which they think might save them, but they have made a great mistake. That letter will have no effect upon the Irish. have no effect upon the Irish.

John J. Farrell, Manager, Catholic World—I do not think that the publication of the letter will affect the situation seriously. I shall vote for Mr. Cleveland in spite of all the letters which West may write.

Patrick Ford, Irish World—I think that Mr.
West's letter must have some effect on thinking Irishmen, though the extent cannot be estimated. Americans generally will resent this interference with their affairs, and probably the result will be with their affairs, and probably the result will be seen at the polls.

W. Traver. Cathotic Union—The letter will have no weight in changing the direction of the big Irish Democratic vote.

Lawrence Develin, Cathotic Union—I am a Democrat and shall vote that way in spite of all the letters in the alphabet—not barring Minister West's.

West's.

James Sadlier, of the firm of D. & J. Sadlier, booksellers, 31 Barclay street—I don't think the letter will change the opinions of many Democrats, and especially the 150 men in the employ of this firm, all of whom are for Cleveland and will apply the the west and the same of the same firm, all of whom are for Cleveland and will surely vote that way.

Major P. M. Haverty, bookseller, 14 Barclay street, thought that the letter would have very little effect on the Democratic vote.

Gen. Michael Kerwin, editor of the Tablet, said: "I am speaking now as a partisan. We have made the allegation all along that Mr. Cleveland is friendly to the British influence, and if the Mintster be not chastised, it will go far to prove the position that the opponents of Mr. Cleveland have taken."

Bryan G. McSwyny said: "Oh, dear, no. The letter won't influence any one who has a little common sense.

letter won't influence any one who has a little common sense.

James Deamond, a prominent Irishman, of San Francisco, said: 'The letter is a humbug—a catch-penny affair—and Minister West was made the dupe of some tricky Republican who desires to make use of the letter for campaign purposes. People understand that it is a political dodge, and they value it accordingly. It was gotten up expressly to take away the sympathy of the Irish people from the Democratic party. I don't think it will be a success."

Lawyer James O'Gormon said: "I do not believe the letter will affect any one's vote. By reason of the antecedents of Mr. Harrison it might be supposed that Lord Sackville-West would prefer to see the Republican candidate our next President."

E Cott, 2 Breadway, is too strong a Democrat

the supposed that Lord Sackville-West would prefer to see the Republican candidate our next President."

E. Cott, 2 Broadway, is too strong a Democratio be turned by such a letter.

James McDonaid, 9 Barclay street—It will make no difference to good Democrats.

Thomas Flynn, 9 West Thirteenth street, said that the letter would not affect him.

Jeremiah Fitzpatrick, 1239 Breadway, will stick to his colora. He considers the letter of Minister West a help to the Democratic party if properly turned to account.

J. D. Flynn, of the Catholic Publication Society, No. 9 Barclay street—Takes no stock in the letter. Will not be influenced by it.

C. M. Tierney, also of the Catholic Publication Society—Holds the same opinion.

Michael McMahon, of P. O'Shea's publishing house, 45 Warren street, says he thinks the letter a fake, and that he does not think any one will be influenced by any such stuff.

Henry L. Hoguet, President of the Emigrants' Industrial Savings Bank, 51 cChambers street—Neither this letter nor anything else from any of Queen Victoria's officers will influence my vote. Some cittisens of English birth might be influenced in their votes by an expressed opinion from so high a source as that of a Minister of State from Great Britain.

Robert E. Ford, one of the editors of the New York Freeman's Journal, No. 45 Warren street, thinks the letter will cost Cleveland at least 16,000 votes and cause the election of Harrison and Morton, as it ought. Mr. Ford is a Republican.

T. F. Mechan, editor of the Prisa American, agrees with Judge Thurman that the letter is a palpable Republican trick, and will have no effect except to more thoroughly convince the public of Lord Sackville-West's desire to lujure the Democratic party and elect his old friend, Senator Ben Harrison.

In all seventy-five interviews with Irishmen were gathered in a half-hour. Not a Democratic vote among these will be changed by the letter. But four Irish Republicans thought it could not fail to lose votes for Cleveland. Several Democratis expressed the opinion that the letter might act as a boomerang for the Republicans, inasmuch as the discussion will bring out the fact that Minister West is a warm friend of Gen. Harrison and naturally desires to see him elected.

This year forty-four new election districts have been made, and it was thought that the increase in the voting population would be provided for by this increase in the number of districts.

It has not proven a sufficient increase.

In many election districts the returns of registration show that the vote will be double the 400 which is provided for, and in some districts the registered vote will reach 1,000 by the time the registry boards close their work to night.

time the registry boards close their work to night.

In the Seventeenth Election District of the Twenty-third Assembly District there are now 546 voters registered and this number will be swelled to 700 by to-day's addition.

Seven hundred and twenty-three had registered in the thirty-two Election Districts of the Twenty-second District up to last night, and to-day's registration will increase the number probably to 1,000.

The polls are open but ten hours, according to law, and estimating that the votes are polled at the rate of one a minute, 600 is the largest number that can be polled.

The highest record of votes received at any previous election was 690.

previous election was 690.

This being the greatest number that the inspectors can handle, it follows that one-third of the voters in some districts will be disfranchised.

This is a startling condition of things the Police Commissioners admit, but they claim that under the law they have no power to remedy it before the coming election.

The phalanx of interviewers started from THE EVENING WORLD office this morning on its final trip, with Washington and Fulton Markets as the objective points.

Saturday morning is always a busy time at these great marts and the Interviewing Corps found all the butchers, greengrocers, butter and cheese men and fishdealers on hand at their stalls when they arrived at the battle-ground.

Material to work upon was abundant, and within ive minutes after the signal for the attack had been given by the Captain, the big markets were transformed into political debating halls, and each nterviewer was the centre of an excited group of marketmen, who deserted their business moment, in order to enable them to get their name registered in THE WORLD's list of voters.

Old women with their buskets, who had come to market to lay in a supply of provender for their families for the coming week, gazed with amazement at the unusual commotion, and wondered what it was all about and why they could not get waited on, for all the stalls in the vicinity were described as soon as a young man with a blue badge made his appearance.

The invasion of the corps was in fact the biggest sensation that both market had experienced in a long time, and the result of an hour's work by the phalanx among the ploturesque festoons of quarters of beef, mutton and port, beautes of onlons and turnips, and dripping counters loaded down with red-sunspers and halibut, showed that the slaughter had been great.

An interesting incident of the morning's campaign was the capture of a venerable dealer in butter and eggs by one of the corps. The old man voted a straight thepublican ticket because he said that in his early youth he had lived in Augusta, Me., and had sat at the same desk at school with Joe Manley, and had known Blaine when he edited a newspaper in that town. The Horrible Discovery Made by Outraged and Killed.

What appears to be a most horrible and revolting murder, its victim a gray-haired woman of sixty years, is absorbing the attention of New Jersey authorities. On Thursday morning a father and son were out hunting. They were tramping through the salt meadows in Secaucus when the boy's attention was attracted to a pile of clothing lying near a fence.

Father and son walked towards the fence, and were horrified to see the remains of a woman, huddled down and lying in a pool of water, with the lower part of the body ex-

The place where the body was found about a mile back of the Shady Side Hotel. The alarm was sent to Messrs. Inglebrecht and Whittlericht, the keepers of the hotel, and they notified Coroner Geschwind.

Morgue-Keeper B. N. Crane, of Hoboken. on being notified, despatched two of his assistants to bring the body to the Morgue. They drove out to the spot and found the woman lying in the shrubbery close to the fence. She had been dead about fifteen hours, The woman's head was thrown back, and her mouth and eyes were wide open. Her right hand was lying underneath her body, and the left hand was held out as if in a defensive position.

From the position of the limbs and the clothing the woman had evidently been as-

From the position of the limbs and the clothing the woman had evidently been assaulted.

After lighting several matches, for darkness was fast approaching, and carefully searching the ground for anything that might lead to a clue or an identification, the two men removed the body to the wagon.

There were foot prints all around the place where the body was found, and these are taken as evidences of a struggle.

The body was taken to Crane's Morgue, in Hoboken, and Coroner's Physician Converse made an examination. He came to the conclusion that an outrage had been attempted, or had been committed.

The woman wore an old brown silk dress, red flannel underclothing, brown stockings, but no shoes. She also had a black velvet sacque, and this was covered by another cloak of white material, trimmed with black plush. Near the body a black, knotted, worsted cap, trimmed with red, was found.

On the finger of the dead woman was an old-gold wedding ring. There had been engraving on the inside of it at some time, but it was worn down so that it could not be deciphered.

Nothing was found in the clothing save a half bunch of celery and two carrots.

The woman was seen on Wednesday morning passing the Shadyside Hotel, and later in the day she was at Homestead Station, four miles this side of Secaucus.

Since the body was brought to the Morgue over a score of people have called, but none has positively identified the dead.

over a score of people have called, but none has positively identified the dead.

A man about twenty-six years old, 6 feet tall, of light complexion and wearing no beard called at the Morron this meaning no beard, called at the Morgue this morning and said that he thought the body that of his grandmother. He refused to give his name and left, saying that he would call again in a couple of days.

Unless the body is identified before Monday, it will be interred in the Potters Field, in New Durham.

The locality in which the body was discovered bears a very unsavory reputation. It is infested with tramps and toughs of the lowest order.

Two Cinbs to Debate the Tariff. Several weeks ago President Robert Bonynge, on behalf of the West Harlem Cieveland and on behalf or the West Hariem Cieveland and Thurman Club, challenged the Hamilton Republican Club, also of Hariem, to a joint debate on the tariff.

Yesterday the preliminaries for the debate were settled. It will occur next Monday evening at Hariem Temple, Col. T. C. Campbeil will represent the Hamilton Club and Counsellor Thomas C. T. Cran will uphold the banner of the Cloveland and Thurman Club.

The subject agreed upon was: "Is the present tariff law of the United States beneficial to the country, and should it be maintained?" Each country, and should it be maintained?" Each speaker will be given three-quarters of an hour to present his argument, and fifteen minutes for a reply.
